Book signing

Author Debbie Buttar will sign copies of her books, "Tonga, The African Elephant" "Llama Sounds?" and "Giraffe Sounds?" Saturday, June 6, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at Author's Squad, 10109 Northcross Center Court, Huntersville.

Local authors

Huntersville author Debbie Buttar fashioned her love for animals, reading and storytelling into three children's books—"Tonga The African Elephant Story," ($14.99) released last year, and two new board books released earlier this month, "Llama Sounds?" ($11.99) and "Giraffe Sounds?" ($11.99, or two for $20.)

"Llama Sounds?" was inspired by

Buttar's life with her husband, Dr. Rashid Buttar, on their Huntersville farm, which they share with horses, miniature donkeys, llamas, goats, pot-belly pigs, dogs, a cat and a rabbit.

A portion of the proceeds from the sale of every book goes to Advanced Medical Education and Services Physician Association foundation, which Rashid Buttar started in connection with his Huntersville clinic. He treats those suffering from autism, cancer and other conditions traditionally considered to be untreatable.

You'll find Debbie Buttar's books on www.childrensstorieshatteach.com, Amazon.com, barnesandnoble.com and bordersbooks.com. She'll also sign copies Saturday, June 6, from 1:30 to 3:30 pm at Author's Squad, 10109 Northcross Center Court, Huntersville.
